

---

---

RAZZISTA, IO!?

---

Review by Davide Pafumi

---

Plot

The short movie “Razzista io?!” shows racism as a cultural approach; when diversity is just a word and it is far from us nobody thinks about himself as a racist. The woman asked to express her thoughts about immigration and inclusion honestly answers she believes that we should help people coming from other countries. The woman perception as a mum totally changes when she sees her daughter with a moroccan.

Feelings of fear

All the feeling of fears and danger and intolerance arise when she looks at a different person so close to her daughter. This feelings generally come out when we face with the unknown. So the only way to solve racism and inclusion problems is to better understand the richness that diversity means in terms of common human rights and different culture.

What is my opinion?

I really enjoyed this short movie: it deals with immigration, racism and social inclusion.